Third-party contributions

Foglight for Databases incorporates many third-party components. This topic includes information about these third-party contributions and helps Quest meet legal requirements.

The matrix on this page lists each third-party component that Quest is required to acknowledge in product documentation or in-product help.

- In the Component column of the matrix, list the third-party components incorporated by Foglight for Databases. Each component name that is followed by an asterisk (*) has source code available at <https://opensource.quest.com/>.
- In the License column of the matrix, the license used by each component is listed.
- In the Notes column of the matrix, required copyright notices for any component is included.

It is a class library for editing bytecodes in Java; it enables Java programs to define a new class at runtime and to modify a class file when the JVM loads it. Unlike other similar bytecode editors, Javassist provides two levels of API: source level and bytecode level. If the users use the source- level API, they can edit a class file without knowledge of the specifications of the Java bytecode. The whole API is designed with only the vocabulary of the Java language. You can even specify inserted bytecode in the form of source text; Javassist compiles it on the fly. On the other hand, the bytecode-level API allows the users to directly edit a class file as other editors. This software is distributed under the Mozilla Public License Version 1.1, the GNU Lesser General Public License Version 2.1 or later, or the Apache License Version 2.0.
